The operations in the stack market continued to diminist to-day, and the indisposition of speculators to venture at present was shown in the insignificant changes in quotations, even among the most prominent shares. The general feeling is more bullish, but white there were no takings of gold for to-morrow's steamers, and no indications of any movement in that line this week, the itemness of exchange with the proximity of the rates to the shipping point, renders caution the order of the day.

The Indinstrials or rather Chicago Gas, was the feature of the day. The railroad stocks were allow to respond to any strength, and the bearsh inclination of the room caused a lower opening and further slight losses. shake off the odious appellation.

Even after it goes to the "bank" the "matter" is not safe. That the "makeup" is soulless is evidenced by the act which elicited from the authoress a sixdeclared that "Sig. De Roror is undoub-tedly one of the greatest bassos living."

When the compositor came to the word "bassos" he gave a sniff of contempt at the critic's ignorance of orthography and substituted an "c" for the "o." With this exception, the criticism reached the bank as near like it was written as any reasonable critic could ask. Alas! "bassos" chanced to be the first word on the line, and the clumsy

The lawn is bathed in the warm June sun, And Phyllis, with tresses black, Whose heart I thought I had surely won, In playing tennis with Jack.

I thought that her brown eyes knew no guile, But they shine the same bright way, And they look at Jack with the same sweet smile That they gave me yesterday. "My turn to serre," I can hear her call; She knows I love her, and yet She treats my heart like the tennis ball She is sending across the net.

The distant waters gleam in the sun,
The breeze blows cool from the bay;
They have dropped their rackets, the set is done,
They are coming, I think, this way.

She sits her down on the rustic sent Which under the maple stands; It is well enough to sprawl at her feet, But he needn't take both her hands!

He speaks, but I cannot hear a word, Her cheeks are as red as a rose. The maple leaves by the wind are stirred— Can it be he means to propose;

Her sweet lips move; is it no or yes?. The faint, soft sound I miss: But what he means lan't hard to guess, There's no mistaking a kiss!

Oh, Phyllis, Phyllis, my faithless love!-I can't stand this any more, by Jovel I'm going upstairs to pack!

To begin with, the telegraph operator can no more comprehend the rudiments of the English language than a managing editor can understand why ten columns of matter will not go in three columns of space. The same operator will make shocking remarks because the young person at the other end of the wire cannot send good Morse, yet he will write "railroad magnets" for "railroad magnates," "all for sure die" for "adjourned sine die," , saw wood" for "S. Nor is that all. The country correspondent delights to file at 6 p. m. a sixhundred-word special concerning the demise of a man whom no one ever heard of before, and another of equal length the next night to say that the gentleman is still dead. And what must the feelings of the confiding telegraph editor be when, on being asked by the vigilant correspondent at Simpkins' Junction, "Want one thousand words resignation of a railroad official?" he answers, "Yes," thinking that the president of the road has thrown up his job, and finds that the well known and popular section foreman at the junction popular section foreman at the junction has retired to private life. Mayhap, before he has lind time to recover from the shock, he will receive a query like

But to return to the subject. The tribulations of a bit of copy have only just begun after it comes off the wire or from the hands of the new reporter. After it has been prinsed of adjectives and besprinkled with comas and periods, it goes to the copy-cutter. Considering his limited opportunities, it is really marvelous what feats in confusion the copy-cutter can accomplish. With a few simple movements of his shears and paste brush, and without once letting his pipe go out, he will get the miscellaneous, telegraph and local copy on his desk into a fungle that will require the united efforts of two proof readers, the night editor and a gally boy the remainder of the night to reduce to order. Here is a sample of his fell work:

heat, where Royal Garter seemed to be winning until Perkinson brought up Sullross with a rush and won with him by a length. This pair fought out the race, running a dead heat, &c.

Think of the chief priestess of theosophy officiating at a horse race!

But, after all; it is the compositor who is the prince of chaos. Be his copy an illegible scrawl, as it generally is, or typewritten on superfine linen paper, he will find some way to show his contempt for Webster and his superiority to all grammatical laws. The mysteries of the sign of the possessive case are too deep for him to fathom, and he never can understand why any distinction should be made in the use of "effect" and "affect;" but he stands in awe of the rules of the office. There is in one of the city offices a rule which gives the preference to "center," "theater," &c., instead of "centre," "theatre." This explaius why that paper recently announced that a famous French actor received a salary of "300 livers."

The intelligent compositor will summon all his fellows to laugh with him the laugh of scorn at the copy-reader who spells drought "dr-on-t-h," and will demand that a chapel-meeting be held on the proof-reader who marks a comma in a thin-spaced line, but he will set up "funeral cortege" "funeral cortege," "duneral cortege," "funeral cortege," "grand Duke" into "grand dude," "yearnings for immortality" into "grand howling hours" without a qualm. One of these type-stickers made a Norwegian orator say: "They (the Scandinaviaus) are not the people who threw the lamb (bomb) into your streets," and a few sentences in the resease, and the final overthrow of the classes to give a monkey (anarchy) full sway." Another amounced that "the Central Traffic Association will meet toof the people, the rising of the masses, and the final overthrow of the classes to give a monkey (anarchy) full sway." Another amounced that "the Central Traffic Association will meet tomorrow to consider the old, old story of snubbing Chicago," when the association only intended to consider "switching charges." Miss Florence Windom would hardly consider this announcement, made a few weeks since, a compliment: "She dresses with great simplicity, and is entirely free from affection" (affectation). And is this not enough to make Wagner turn in his grare? "There was undoubtedly some disappointment, from the fact that the Trilogy was not given in its entirety, nor 'Psisipal' ('Parsifal') for the stunuing event of the season. 'Die Walklarge

Imagine Stanley marching across "maniac" (manice) fields, or conceive of a Black Hills gold miner discovering a ledge of "tellwide" (telluride) ore; or picture in your mind's eye the hills of Alabama covered with "forests of tall peonies" (pines) or Post Color Guard A. P. Connolly presenting on behalf of Dr. Owen to U. S. Grant Post, No. 18, G. A. R., a beautiful stand of colors, including "gridirons" (guidons); and think what of explanation this headline, "It's a Frightful Scheme," which was written "It's a Fruitful Theme" must have necessitated.

But retribution sometime overtakes.

But retribution sometime overtakes the blunderer. Any old printer can tell you of the compositor who having the word "government" abbreviated "gov!" soveral times in his "take," made it "goat," and was thenceforth known as "The Goat," though he crossed the continent several times in a vain effort to shake off the odious appellation.

whiten elected from the authoress a six-page note beginning thus:
"Mr. Blank, Managing Edilor of the Daily Ranter:
"How dared you place my beautiful little poem next to the horse market in your last Sunday's issue?"
Not many years ago a Chicago critic declared that "Sig. De Roror is undoub-first word on the line, and the clumay make-up in his haste dropped the "b" without noticing it. And, this is why that critic was compelled to tear himself from home and kindred at dead of night. and, without even waiting to draw the weed's salary due, became a wanderer upon the face of the earth.

Brendstuffs and Provisions.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 16.—Wheat market opened strong and a shade higher than last night's closing. The early strength was due to reports that it was raining in the winter wheat belt where have sting was in progress, though the weather pap did not fully conlinn these statements, and fears of a wet harvest made shorts nervous. Small local shorts also coveres freely. Liverpool advices showed a decline there of 154 with rade dull. The announcement that Dunham & Co. had thansferred their trades and would retire from business did not have any appreciable effect on the market.

There was a good business in corn, though it was mostly of local character.

Outs fairly active, with medium figures. Provisions were active and strong most of the day.
